

Results of the observation show a clear preference for replies, avoiding or minimising the number of 'status updates' – posts addressed to all members of a social network.