Coping mechanism: Audience management

Some participants prefer to use impermanent content features, like messages that disappear after a few hours or stories that only last for 24 hours.

"A time limited way of having things on there would be quite good, so that you could set up an interval, say two weeks or something, so your reaction, post or reply would stay up long enough for people to see it, and then be deleted after a set amount of time."